Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 4-5, 9, 11, 15-16 and 20 are objected to because of the following informalities: The “the tip” in claims 4 and 15, “the repulsive magnetic force” in claims 5 and 16, “the inclined angle” in claims 9 and 20, and “the opposite side” in claim 11 lack antecedent bases. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 10-12 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kono (US 6,229,694 B1).

Kono teaches a notebook computer (1, fig. 5) comprising: a main body (13) with a cavity (13A) and a multimedia device (9), a monitor (2) pivoted to the main body, a multimedia controller (18) having at least one key (shown in fig. 5, not labeled) to control the multimedia device, and connected to the main body (see col. 8, lines 10-11), movable between a first position (not shown) and a second position (shown in fig. 5), wherein the multimedia controller received in the cavity when the multimedia controller is in the first position, and the multimedia controller appears when the multimedia controller is in the second position (claims 1 and 11-12); and wherein the multimedia device is a disc driver (see col. 5, lines 21-23) (claims 10 and 21).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 2 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kono in view of Kim (US 5,825,614).

Kono discloses the claimed invention except the multimedia controller being pivoted to a side surface of the notebook computer.

Kim teaches a notebook computer (100, fig. 2) comprising a multimedia controller (200, a keyboard may be a multimedia controller) having at least one key (shown in fig. 2), being pivoted to a side surface of the notebook computer.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Kono with the multimedia controller taught by Kim for saving of work area of a desk when not in use and for easily being transported.

6. Claims 7-9 and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kono in view of Hosoi et al. (US 4,951,241).

Kono discloses the claimed invention except a handle pivoted to the main body at a side closed the monitor.

Hosoi teaches a notebook computer (fig. 9) comprising: a main body (100), a monitor (300) pivoted to the main body, and a handle (400) connected to the main body at a side closed to the monitor (shown in fig. 7) (claims 7 and 18); wherein the handle is pivoted to the main body and movable between a first angle (shown in fig. 6) and a second angle (shown in fig. 5) (claims 8 and 19); and wherein when the handle is fixed the first angle, handle protrudes downward from the main body (shown in fig. 7), changing the inclined angle (θ) thereof (claims 9 and 20).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Kono with the handle taught by Hosoi for ergonomic purposes.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 3-6 and 14-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The best prior art of record, Kono (US 6,229,694 B1), chuang (US 6,341,060 B1), Hosoi et al. (US 4,951,241), and Kim (US 5,825,614), taken alone or in combination, fails to teach or fairly suggest a notebook computer comprising: a notebook computer comprising: a switch on a main body of the notebook computer, wherein when the switch is pressed, the multimedia controller appears as set forth in claims 3 and 14; and wherein the multimedia controller has a LCD module as set forth in claims 6 and 17. Claims 4-5, and 15-16 are dependent claims from claims 3 and 14, respectively.
